

Atlanta Wakes up to Pelagragia.

Atlanta is undoubtedly awakening, though none too soon, to its public duty of providing means for the treatment and cure of pelagragia. The establishment of a free clinic for this purpose by the Associated Charities is now being followed by the opening of a hospital in connection with the institutional work of the Baptist Tabernacle.

For many weeks past Dr. Broughton has been actively at work toward this end and now, it is announced, his plans are nearing fruition. This will accommodate twenty-one patients and reception will be made for at least six charity patients. It will be in charge of skilled physicians and nurses who have devoted particular attention to this disease.

There is ample room and need for both the clinic and the hospital. Each of them, indeed, will cover a field which is more or less distinctive. The former is intended solely for persons who are unable to pay for medical service. The latter will be a thoroughly equipped sanitarium, open to the general public. At the same time, it will conduct a charity ward.

For both reasons, it should appeal to the community's civic spirit and should be accorded liberal support. As we noted yesterday, there have been fifty-one deaths from pellagra in Atlanta since the beginning of the year and of these the great majority were among white. This disease has reached a degree of prevalence here, along with tuberculosis, it demands public attention.

Heretofore, there has been no institution where persons so afflicted could go for advice or aid. The clinic and the hospital mentioned are perhaps the first of their kind in the entire South. They both deserve the generous support of the Atlanta people.—Atlanta Journal

Excise Commissioners Charged With Accepting Bribes.

Columbus, Sept. 9.—A sensation was created in Girard yesterday when Excise Commissioners W. M. Moses and Deronda Levy, of Girard, were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Perry on the charge of bribery. Mr. Moses and Mr. Levy made a bond of $1,000 each for their appearance, at a preliminary hearing next Saturday and were released.

It is claimed that these men were bribed by some of the applicants for whiskey licenses. The warrants were sworn out by M. A. H. Cogbill before Justice of the Peace N. W. Pittman. Moses and Levy are brothers-in-law, and it is charged that they made an agreement with certain dealers by which they are to receive a part of the profits of their business.

Beat 5 Notes.

Mr. E. F. Hemby and wife spent Sunday with Mr. T. J. Hussey near Victoria.

Rev. C. O. Helms filled his regular appointment at Bluff Springs church Sunday. The church received six applicants for baptism, and two who joined by letter.

The writer and Dr. E. G. Bragg went to Dyess school house Sunday where they attended singing. Dr. Bragg will soon return to college.

Mr. J. M. Dyess went with the scouting party to Andalusia.

Miss Arley Dyess attended the Teachers' Institute at Enterprise, last week.

Messrs J. C. Parker, Paul Johnson, Horace Hutchinson, and S. H. Brock, of Elba, were at Lewis' Mill Tuesday on a fishing trip.

Mr. George Henderson and family are home from a trip to Banks.

Mr. Moses is cashier at the Elba City bank and Mr. Levy is proprietor of an electrical supply house of this city.

Mr. Levy stated that he had no fear of the outcome of the prosecution. He said it was simply the work of a disgruntled few who had been refused licenses, and he regarded the prosecution as malicious.

Mr. Cogbill was an applicant before the commission for license as a retailer of liquors but his application was turned down.

Don't Shock Your Liver With Calomel.

Dodson's Liver-Tone Persuades It to Work Naturally and Safely—No Restriction of Habits or Diet.

If you have a sick horse, you cannot make him work by beating him, and if you try it you are liable to ruin him forever. It's the same way with your liver. When it becomes torpid and sluggish, you can take calomel and whip it into action, but the calomel will leave your body weaker and sicker than ever. Calomel is a very powerful chemical made from mercury.

A perfect substitute for calomel, that has all of its medicinal properties with none of its dangerous and uncertain follow-ups, is Dodson's Liver-Tone.

The Elba Drug Co. sells Dodson's Liver-Tone with the guarantee that if you don't find it a perfect substitute for calomel, this store will give you your money back. Dodson's Liver-Tone is a true tonic for the liver, purely vegetable, and with such a pleasant taste that it is no trouble to get children to take it. It is absolutely impossible for it to do anyone any harm, because it simply persuades the liver to do what it ought to do—no more and no less.

FREE REMEDY HELPS CHILDREN

Many a mother has learned of a way of avoiding sickness in her family, especially among the children, by the use of a free sample bottle of the famous laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This offer of the doctor's to send a free sample bottle has been repeated by thousands of women in all parts of America.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a truly wonderful laxative and especially adapted to the needs of babies and children because it is pleasant to taste and no child will refuse it. It is mild and never grips. It is all that a child's remedy should be, though it is a good laxative for the whole family because it is effective at all ages. It is not dynamic like salts, pills and powerful cathartics, which should not be given to children under any circumstances.

"Grandma," Aged 29 Years.

A grandmother of two children at the age of 29 years and of three at thirty years is the record of Mrs. E. W. Bender of Atlanta. It is asserted that Mrs. Bender is the youngest grandmother on record and her case is one of the most remarkable outside of the tropical countries.

Mrs. Bender, who is 21 years of age now, was born in 1890 in South Carolina. She was married to E. W. Moore at Columbus, S. C., in 1892. She was only thirteen years of age when her first child was born. This child, a daughter, was married in 1900 to Edward Sinclair and in January, 1910, gave birth to twins, the mother being barely 16 years old.

At the age of 16 years, Mrs. Bender's daughter gave birth to another child, the third of Mrs. Bender's grandchildren. Mr. Moore died when Mrs. Sinclair was an infant. Later his widow married E. W. Bender and that union was blessed by several children. Physicians claimed it was rare in this part of the world that a woman became a grandmother even in the early thirties.

Notice. To the patrons of Elba school:—When the school began a year ago, I had a notice put in the "Clipper" relative to guidance of the delivery of the mail etc. To some one of the family, that would be the most suitable to call for and transact the business for the whole family. It is much better for all concerned, you get better service, and it reduces the "Gon. Del." work of the office. When one family has several children going, it often happens, that one calls, and then the others, and consequently we never know when it has been taken out. I will thank every one very kindly to give this matter their careful consideration. Please send me the name of the one that you select.

I am most Respectfully, W. S. Mullins, Postmaster.

Calomel Is Dangerous. Is a Powerful Chemical Made from Mercury—People Should be Cautious.

The only sure way to avoid the danger of calomel is to take no calomel.

Dodson's Liver-Tone, a vegetable liquid of pleasant taste, more than takes its place. Where calomel shakes you up and shocks your liver, Dodson's Liver-Tone, mild but effective, builds up and strengthens. It "liven up the liver."

Get a bottle at Elba Drug Co., and if it doesn't do what you think it ought—if it doesn't make bilious spells mere trifles—if it doesn't "liven up your liver," your money will be waiting for you.

Inter-Ocean On Pensacola Scout Party.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean of Wednesday morning contained the following regarding the Pensacola scouts.

With an accumulation of mud and dust of seven states clinging to the body and running gear of the 1910 model H Speedwell in which they had blazed a trail from Pensacola, Fla., a part of our automobilists, piloted by Dr. S. R. Mallory Kennedy of the Commercial Association of that city, arrived in Chicago yesterday.

The speedometer showed that the tourists had traveled 1,149 miles since leaving Pensacola a week ago Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The actual running time was seventy-four hours and thirty-five minutes.

The final lap of the trip was made from Lafayette, Ind., escorted by a delegation of Chicago Motor Club members of which C. H. Gates and J. H. Quinlan were the pilots. The distance of 187 miles was covered in five hours and twenty minutes, the fastest time recorded on route.

Accompanying Dr. Kennedy, who is a good roads enthusiast, were Colonel Frank L. Mayes of the Pensacola Journal, A. M. Avery, Jr., and F. C. Brent, Jr. The object of the tour was to scout a route to the lakes route—one that may be utilized at all times of the year for the increasing automobile travel between the north and south and one also that may be adopted by the official automobile Blue Book as the most available between the lakes and the gulf.

Dothan Man Finds Wife Insane in Memphis.

Montgomery Journal.

After searching for his wife and seven-year-old daughter, Dorothy, in Memphis, Tenn., two gruelling days and nights, P. M. Carlisle, a former druggist of Dothan, Ala., found them four blocks from the hotel where they were stopping. His wife was in a hopelessly insane condition and had been the victim of an unknown man who divested her of jewels worth fully seven hundred dollars.

Mr. Carlisle passed through Montgomery Friday afternoon with his pretty little daughter, en route to Dothan. He has placed his wife in a sanitarium, hoping against fate that she may recover.

That Mrs. Carlisle, whose mind it now appears was in a gradually failing condition, was the prey of a smooth villain, is the account furnished by Mr. Carlisle during his brief stay in Montgomery.

One Diamond Left.

"This man worked my wife for her jewels," said Mr. Carlisle in a trembling tone, "he played upon my wife's unbalanced mind. I located her last Wednesday in a boarding house of Memphis four blocks from the hotel. When she was about $750 worth of jewels on her person. When I found her she had left only one small diamond ring."

According to Mr. Carlisle, his wife's health, though not at all alarming, had not been the best, and she went five weeks ago to Hot Springs, Ark., with her little daughter. On leaving home it was not apparent that her mind was weakening, but soon after reaching Hot Springs she sent numerous mysterious telegrams to her husband. Finally, on Sunday, he received a telegram from her calling him to Memphis at once.

Told of Illness.

"She said in this message that she was ill and wished me to come on immediately," said Mr. Carlisle. "It was one of her lucid moments and she was calling for my assistance. I rushed to Memphis by the first train to find that on Sunday afternoon she had left her hotel in Memphis, taking our little girl with her. I could not find her. I called on the police. They could render no assistance. Finally on Tuesday night I enlisted the aid of the Commercial-Appeal, a newspaper, and soon after the account appeared in this paper or Wednesday morning, police received a telephone message from a woman who conducts a boarding house. It developed that my wife had gone there. The police once reached me and I found my wife and daughter. I am indebted to the Commercial-Appeal for finding my dear ones."

"I have ascertained that there was a man who was polite to my wife and followed her from Hot Springs to Memphis, making it a point to register at the same hotel. He saw those jewels and he simply worked her for them, discovering that my wife's mind was unbalanced."

Mr. Carlisle said that he has only a vague description of the unknown man and it would be a miracle if he should be apprehended. However, the Memphis police are working on the case.

Enterprise is all right.

The people of Coffee have set a good example for some of her sister counties.

The peoples Ledger deserves much credit for its good work for good roads.

Every Commissioners district must have its part of good roads money and good road construction.

The S. W. District Sunday School Convention at Fairview church Sunday was a successful
one. Several Sunday schools were represented, and the good people of Fairview community entertained the people admirably.

The Elbians attending the convention were: Mrs. Claude Riley,
Miss Ella Law, Hickman Riley,
P. A. Symonds, Crook Warren,
and J. A. Carnley.

The bond election Saturday
demonstrates the fact that Coffee County realizes the great need of better highways. It also expresses the progressiveness of Coffee County's citizenship. Already many good things are being said
by people outside of the county in regard to this forward step.
Good roads is being a national question. The state of Alabama has already taken steps toward constructing better public highways and the United States will probably give aid soon. Already there are being marked out and located great national highways.
One of these national highways has been located through Coffee and it is very probably that a second one will be located through the county soon. The one of the national highways will extend from New York to Mobile and the other from Pensacola to Chicago.

It will be observed, therefore,
that these roads will connect the largest cities of the north with the most important gulf ports.
The impetus that will be given to trade by the opening of the Panama Canal will make the south commercially the leading section of the entire country, and these national highways will help to build up any section through which they may pass.

It is very opportune now for Coffee to take a stand in favor of good road construction. It will most likely secure the location
through the county of the Gulf-
to-Lakes National Highway.

But this is not the greatest things about the vote, for bonds
The building of good roads all over the county will be the greatest benefit ever conferred on our citizenship. To do this, however, it will take some time necessarily,
and the people will have to be patient, and will have to trust the matter to the wisdom of our county commissioners and probate judge. They are sensible and patriotic men, and will endeavor to apportion the expenditure of the money fairly and justly all over the county.

Then, too, it need not be expected that the commissioners can build good roads along every public road in the county with $100,000.00. It would be impossible to do that, but they can construct the principal roads through every section of the county, and we are sure they will strive to do this.

The county's revenues are continually increasing, and money can be had from time to time to use in building good roads, and the good roads work can be carried on until every public road in the county is a flood one.

The Clipper does not doubt the wisdom of the vote in Saturday's election, and it believes that the people of the county will not have cause to regret this vote.

More than half of the village of

been destroyed by forest fires sweeping along before a northward gale. Thirty-three houses and two lumber mills are in ashes and the fire is still advancing. One man is missing and probably perished in the flames. Two other villages, Port Clyde and Cape is practically surrounded by fire. Millions of feet of fine standing timber is being destroyed.

that loss of sight probably was due to the bursting of a blood vessel and that there was a change Hardy

Las Castro, an Aztec Indian from old Mexico, was arrested at Adairville, Ga., a few days ago on the charge of stealing a ride on a freight train and brought to Cartersville for trial. Judge Fouts fined him $1 or 24 hours in jail, which was later remitted.
The officers felt very sorry for the man, as he could not speak a word of English, but was able to speak some Spanish. Colonel Towns-send, one of the members of the local bar, who can speak the Spanish tongue, acted as interpreter for the court. The citizens raised a subscription to help send him back to his home in Mexico.

Benjamin K. Rhyder, a traveling salesman from Littleton, N. C., committed suicide at the Lynn Haven hotel, Norfolk, Va. A bell boy found the body lying across a bed in the room occupied by Rhyder. There was a bullet hole in the head. The weapon used was a cheap 22-caliber revolver.
Rhyder was about 30 years old.

ories of Daring Outrages Perpetrated in Cumberland Mountains.

News comes from Spencer, Vanburien county, Tenn., situated in a remote part of the Cumberland mountains, of a series of outrages committed by moonshiners and developments of the past few weeks have proved that in spite of stern efforts to break up night riding, kluksu marauding in the mountains is still a thing to be dreaded.

Following a recent raid by revenue officers near the little town of Spencer, in which a man named Sullivan was killed, eight moonshiners organized themselves into a band of white-caps, went on horseback to the home of Dan Whittenberg, who it is alleged had given lodging to the revenue officers.
The outlaws entered his house at 2 o'clock, took Whittenberg away from his wife and children, and carrying him out in his own yard, most whipped him to death. Only a day or so before this Slato Morris, of the same vicinity, who had given lodging to the officers, was shot from ambush while plowing in the field.
Part of a load of buckshot entered his body, one striking him in the face.

Before arriving at the home of Whittenberg the night riders visited his father, Pete Whittenberg, and threatened him.

While they were beating him, Whittenberg recognized the entire band
some of them by their voices, others by their horses. When he had sufficiently recovered from his terrible experience, Whittenberg swore out warrants against the eight suspects.

When the case was called for trial a few days ago Whittenberg failed to appear and it was alleged that he had been threatened by the night riders so the cases were dismissed, but the criminal court, which meets in October will investigate the matter thereafter.

POOR ORIGINAL

BLEED THROUGH

terrible night. None can forget it, those who have sat beneath the matchless and melodious voice of Henry and listened to the burning of the drums to the strains of his music. We had planned so much on him, staked our last hopes on his vocal powers, only to lose him. Hank and his music voice three us down, but none holds it against him. It was fate. It was Nemesis. We had lost too loudly. We had lost without knocking wood of the resounding glories of that voice.

That was what happened: The Democrats of this country were about to assemble in convention for the purpose of ratifying the choice of the People's Choice, that choice should be named for President for the third weary time. They had selected Denver for their rallying place, and raised their banners. Certain preliminaries were to be observed. One was the selection of a permanent chairman to register the convention's will. The wise men of the Democracy—if so there be—were anxious in their choice. Henry D. Clayton was the man. He had the vast assemblage hear. So they chose Henry.

He keynoted in a manner that reminded you of a salute of one hundred and one guns. He made such other speeches as were necessary—a few hundred now and then—and that matchless voice remained true to all advances. The vast assembly heard him, heard him to the consequent echoes of scores of patriots and hundreds of observers. They came the night of nights. The nomination was to be made. Pardon me if I say night of nights. It was the night of nights and the morning of mornings, for so many speechmakers desired to second the nomination of the Peerless Leader that the obsequies ran along until the sun rose above Pike's Peak, if the sun does rise above Pike's Peak, a matter of which I have no record. Anyhow it should rise there.

Gus Thomas tore up a pine tree and wrote the name of William Jennings Bryan on the burning sky in letters of fire. Ollie James traced the progress of Mr. Bryan round the world until he got him in Buckingham Palace, where the King took of his jeweled diadem and cast it at his—Bryan's—poor, lost foot. Two hundred and forty-seven other orators, more or less, performed similar stunts, and then came the crucial moment. All the orators talked themselves and the convention to frazzles. The vote! What said the convention? How had it recorded the will of the Democracy?

Well, you can search anybody who was there, for at that exact moment the voice of Henry D. Clayton failed; petered out, vanished, vanished. He had no voice. He had no whisper. All he could do was to stand there, gasp and make signs. How about that for a tragedy? Can you beat it? You cannot, you positively cannot. You cannot even tie it, in all the histories of the tragic moments of this world, from the time Eve ate the apple to the day when John D. Rockefeller discovered that the Supreme Court did not consider him a benevolent old party, but did consider him a combination in restraint of trade.

He is a nice round man, with a round face, a round paunch and a calm and cheerful smile. As I said, you would pick him out for a cherub any day. But he is not mislead. Within Henry, somewhere behind that bland and cherubic face, there reposes The Voice. Reposes, did I say? A lapse, a palpable lapse. It does not repose. It comes forth in all its majesty, and roars until the foundations of the very ramparts of the universe itself quake and quiver when assaulted by its vast outpouring—Saturday Evening Post.

For 6 doses of Kin-Lax will cure any case of biliousness.

It did not fail him. After the first speaker had responded to the toast, "The Day We Celebrate," Henry spoke for another thirty minutes in introducing the next one. There were plenty of speakers and Henry gave each one a good send-off, half an hour of introduction being the allotment, but, in the case of an especially distinguished guest, forty-five minutes being considered none too much.

It was three o'clock in the morning when blind Senator Gore was introduced, and the winter sun had gilded the dome of the library before Henry turned them loose. At the close he was going strong. His voice was as resonant and as powerful as it was when he began. Denver was forgotten. The voice was again supreme.

But Henry is not all voice. Perish that thought! That marvelous organ is backed by a heap of brains. He is now chairman of the Judiciary Committee, where he has for many years the ranking Democrat when the Republicans were in control. He is now serving his eighth term in Congress and has a solid reputation for legal ability, courage and simon-pure Democracy. He was born in his district in 1857, had a term in the Alabama Legislature, and was United States district attorney from 1893 to 1896.

Judge Jones' Reply To Comer Stirs Up Ire Of Rufus Kolb.

Montgomery, Sept. 20.—Action of Judge Thomas G. Jones, former governor of Alabama, in jumping out of the Comer frying pan has landed him into the Kolb fire, according to rumors of war brewing in this city as a result of a statement published by Judge Jones on Sunday morning in that statement Judge Jones sought to explain the stormy political period in Alabama history from 1892 to 1894, when he was governor, but in doing so he has enraged Capt. R. F. Kolb, present commissioner of agriculture, who at that stormy time was independent candidate for governor.

Judge Jones' statement was primarily in answer to former Gov. B. B. Comer, who stated several weeks ago that Judge Jones, because of a faulty election count, was not rightfully governor in 1892-94, but that rather Captain Kolb, his opponent, was elected. Judge Jones refuted the Comer attacks, and set forth, what he termed the history of the two years. But in doing this he has enraged Captain Kolb, who now gives out that he is preparing a statement which will prove to the people that he, Kolb, was elected to office by a majority ranging anywhere from 50,000 to 60,000.

Joe Furlow Burned to Death.

Troy Messenger.

News was received here shortly after noon today by J. E. Carroll, that Joe Furlow, formerly a warehouseman in Troy, had been burned to death at his home in Louisiana. Further particulars were not given.

Mr. Furlow moved from Montgomery some months ago to Vivian, Louisiana, in the oil well section of that State.

A letter has just been received here from him that it was in that connection some way that his clothing became ignited.

Mr. Furlow was well known to the people of Pike and was a splendid man. His death will be much regretted. He has two brothers residing near Henderson.

Until a few days ago his son was connected with the Faulk stable at this city, but he is now in South Carolina.

Mr. Furlow's death will be heard with sorrow by his many friends here.

Harry C. Gunnels Dies In Atlanta.

Montgomery Journal.

Harry Cunningham Gunnels, twice superintendent of education of Alabama, and one of the best known educators in the south, died in Atlanta at 9:15 o'clock on Monday morning. Death was unexpected, and was directly due to uremic poison, according to the meager information which was received in this city from the Georgia metropolis.

For several months Major Gunnels had been in declining health, directly due to recently discovered traces of pellagra, which in the past few weeks made rapid strides in the way of breaking down the educator's rugged constitution.

Up to a week ago, however, he was apparently in no more serious condition than he had been for several months. Early last week he was in the city shaking hands with numerous friends here. On last Friday morning, Major Gunnels left for Atlanta, where he went to a sanitarium for treatment. His death early Monday morning was the first intimation which his many friends here had received of the serious turn to his illness.

Immediately upon receiving word of Major Gunnels' death, Mrs. Gunnels left for Atlanta, while a brother of the deceased, from Birmingham, left to join her in Atlanta. James Gunnels, another brother of the deceased, remained in Montgomery with the two young daughters of Major and Mrs. Gunnels.

It is expected that Major Gunnels' body will be buried at Oxford, though particulars of the funeral have not been announced.

Sketch of His Life.

Major Gunnels was born in Oxford, Calhoun county, Ala., October 1, 1868, a son of Daniel Perry and Susan E. (Cunningham) Gunnels. He was educated in the common schools of his native place and in 1888 took the degree of A. B. at Oxford College. He took a special course at Vanderbilt University and later attended the University of Alabama where he graduated in 1901 with the degree of LL.D. Although a graduate in law, his entire life was given over to educational work, excepting one term as a member of the legislature 1900-01.

In October 1886, he began teaching as co-principal of the Ashland High School; he was later professor of Natural Science and History in Oxford College for two years; he was principal of the Anniston High School; and he was superintendent of the Anniston city schools 1896-98.

In 1899 he was appointed chief clerk in the state educational department under John W. Abernethy, who, at that time, was state superintendent of education. In June, 1902, Dr. Abernethy was elected president of University of Alabama, whereupon Major Gunnels was appointed to fill out Dr. Abernethy's unexpired term.

Appointed to Office.

Upon the election of I. W. Hill as superintendent of education for the term beginning in 1903, Major Gunnels was again appointed chief clerk in the educational department. He served in this department until 1907 when he became state superintendent of education, having been elected to this office the previous fall. He remained as superintendent until last January when he was succeeded by H. J. Willingham.

During his legislative term, Major Gunnels served as a member of the house committee on education and he was author of the bill providing for five months' suit.

free school. He was chairman of the committee on legislation of the Alabama Education committee; and director for Alabama of the Southern Educational Association.

Major Gunnels was successively lieutenant and captain of Co. "I," of the Second infantry regiment, and from 1890 to 1906 was inspector with the rank of Major on the staff of Brigadier General Louis V. Clark. He was a democrat, a member of the Methodist church, a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason, a Shriner and a Knight of Pythias.

On November 25, 1895, Major Gunnels married Miss Sadie Emily Goss, of Commerce, Ga.

Would Impeach the Sheriff of Cullman.

Cullman, Ala., Sept. 19.—Charged him with corruption in office, C. W. Bryce, Sheriff of Cullman County, was recommended for impeachment by the grand jury in their final report submitted to Judge D. W. Speake this afternoon. The report submitted this afternoon as a result of a special charge given the grand jury last Saturday morning by Judge Speake relative to the rumors that have been in circulation in Cullman for the past several days, charging that Mr. Bryce had attempted to barter away the office of the sheriff of this county. He was also indicted by the grand jury for the offense.

The report of the grand jury this afternoon comes as a great surprise to the friends of the sheriff and the sheriff himself. It is the source of much comment in the city and surrounding country. The rumors grew out of the contest case over the sheriff's office and the fact that Mr. Bryce sought to dismiss the mandamus case against Judge Burke. This action could not be understood by the people and sentiment was at such a state until Judge Speake ordered an investigation by the Grand Jury Saturday morning of which their report this afternoon is a result.

The Real Man heard of it and was very sorry for her, and tried in a nice way to show it. Melted by his sympathy, Eve wept a few instinctive tears, which hurt the Real Man and made him angry. "Why don't you get a divorce?" he asked.

Eve wanted to say: "Because

An Endless Chain.

By Adele Luchman In Smart Set.

Eve had been born with an instinct to tell the truth, which was a mean advantage to take of a helpless infant. Then her Mother had rubbed it in by teaching her that it was wicked to tell lies, and that if she did it God would love her and the Devil would certainly get her. Eve believed it.

But when she was five years old Eve made the acquaintance of Consequences. One day she knocked a vase off a table and it broke. Her Mother came in and said: "Eve, did you do that?"

Eve looked straight into her Mother's eyes and said, "Yes, Mother."

Her Mother spanked her. Eve cried a little, then, remembering that God loved her and the Devil wouldn't get her, she stopped.

One day she played with her Mother's tortoiseshell comb and broke it. Her Mother found it and asked "Eve, did you do that?"

Eve's instinct was to say "Yes," but she remembered the spanking, so she looked straight into her Mother's eyes and said, "No, Mother."

Her Mother believed her, because Eve had a good reputation. She had bought it with a spanking.

Then her Mother said it must have been the maid; so she dismissed the maid and gave Eve a piece of cake.

Eve ate the cake and reflected that it was also Consequences and didn't hurt when you sat down. She reflected, moreover, that the Devil was slow in arriving. She forgot that God didn't love her if she did it. God wouldn't love her and the Devil would certainly get her. The Child believed it. One day the child pulled a costly statuette of the drawing room table and broke it. "Did you do that?" Eve asked.

The Child looked straight into Eve's eyes and said: "Yes, Mother."

When Eve became a woman, a man—a Real Man—wanted to marry her.

Eve longed to answer: "I love you, I love you, I love you, and it doesn't matter if you are poor."

But she had by this time formed the habit of considering Consequences before speaking, so she replied instead: "I will be a sister to you, but I can never be your wife."

Another man—an Imitation Man—asked Eve to marry him. Her instinct was to say: "I don't love you, and I don't respect you. I know you are weak, with vices, and that you have lived a disreputable life. And though you are so very rich I will not marry you."

After consideration of Consequences, however, she substituted: "I love you for yourself alone, and I will marry you because I know you are all that is good and noble."

Her Husband was just as good and noble as she had expected him to be—only more so. She didn't mind for the most part because she had a fine house, beautiful clothes and an automobile. But when he was drunker than usual he abused her before the servants, and the servants talked, so that all her friends knew just how good and noble her Husband really was. Which wasn't pleasant.

The Real Man heard of it and was very sorry for her, and tried in a nice way to show it. Melted by his sympathy, Eve wept a few instinctive tears, which hurt the Real Man and made him angry. "Why don't you get a divorce?" he asked.

I don't know much about money I'd get."

But she sobbed. "I must bear it for my Child."

The Real Man was greatly touched by her heroic self-sacrifice and loved her all the more. Then her Husband got drunker than ever before and tried to kill her. Instinct and reason agreeing for once, she left him and consulted a lawyer about a divorce. The day before the papers were filed, her Husband died in delirium tremens.

She hastened back to the conjugal roof and went to the funeral swathed in crape.

Her women friends wrote that their hearts bled for her and that they knew just how she felt.

They did indeed. They would have liked to write: "Congratulations! How much did he leave you?"

Eve replied, between the broadest of black margins, that the light of her life had gone out, but for her Child's sake she would make an effort to go on living. What she thought was: "Now I'm going to live!"

The Real Man waited a decent interval, then offered his heart and hand.

Eve felt like saying flatly: "I'm a widow with money and without regret, and I would not marry the best man living."

But she told him with gentle sadness that her heart was buried in her Husband's grave.

The Real Man said she was the most truly womanly woman he had ever known—and he never married.

Eve adored her Child, and brought her up in the way she should go. She taught that the Devil was wicked to tell lies, and that if she did it God wouldn't love her and the Devil would certainly get her. The Child believed it. One day the child pulled a costly statuette of the drawing room table and broke it. "Did you do that?" Eve asked.

The Child looked straight into Eve's eyes and said: "Yes, Mother."

And Eve spanked her.

Roast O'Neal At Falkville.

Decatur, Ala., Sept. 19.—Many of the prohibitionists of the little town of Falkville, this county, are quite indignant with Governor Emmet O'Neal, accusing him of trying to influence the voters of that precinct to vote a wet ticket, in the recent local option election held in this county. They accuse the Governor of sending the following telegram to leaders of the wets:

"If the Morgan County election goes wet, I will not appoint excise commissioners for the little town of Falkville unless petitioned to do so by a majority of the citizens. I understand that it is a small rural community without police protection."

Emmet O'Neal, "Governor."

Falkville gave a dry majority, the vote being prohibition 105, saloons 56. It is an incorporated town and has a Mayor and Board of Aldermen and police protection.

The prohibitionists of the place, boiling over with indignation for the Governor, telegraphed the Governor the following:

"The good people of Falkville resent your attempt to interfere in our local option election, and judging by the vote cast here our people have no more confidence in your promise now than we had before your election."

This telegram was signed by A. G. Patterson and 100 other citizens of Falkville.

It is claimed that Governor O'Neal's telegram was sent before the local option election and was intended to influence the people to vote wet.
